

Scholarship Fund Announcement

Women In Defence and Security, A National Security Organization affiliated with the Canadian Defence Industry Association (CDIA), is pleased to announce it will be launching a Scholarship Fund (name tbd) with a mandate to;

- encourage women to pursue careers related to the national security and defence interests of Canada, and to provide development opportunities to women already working in national security and defence fields.
- provide a scholarship program to provide financial assistance to further educational objectives of women who are Canadian citizens either employed or planning careers in defence or national security areas.

Currently, both the funding and the selection criteria are under development, however WiDS looks forward to making its first award in May 2006 at its Annual General Meeting. Please consult the web-site for updates and future developments.
